MAHJONG NOTES

Because some people may not be familiar with Mahjong upon reading Death Po, we will take the time to explain all Mahjong terms and rules that come up at the end of each chapter. Please see happycare.blogspot.com for a basic overview of the game itself.

Fig. 013:

"Sessions": A Mahjong Session is something like a "Set" in Tennis, a division of a match that counts towards the ultimate point total. Each session consists of 8 Rounds, divided into two groups, the East and South rounds. Each of these goes from 1-4, going from the East 1st to East 4th rounds, then through the South 1st to South 4th Rounds. At the end of these Sessions, each players' point totals (normally 3-5 digits) are used to determine their end-of-session point totals, a 1-3 digit number. The end-of-session point totals are added together to produce the grand total, which decides the winner of the Mahjong Match as a whole.

Fig. 014-015:

"Rich": A Rich is a declaration that your hand is able to win if it gets one more tile. Calling it allows you to get more points if you win with it, but also requires a bet of 1,000 points that you will lose if you cannot win with it.

DOUBLE

Fig. 031:

"Double Riichi": A Riichi that is made on the very first turn. In other words, to legally call Double Riichi, your starting hand must be 1 tile away from winning, or in other words, it must be in "Tenpai".
The bid is the same as a normal Riichi (1000 points), but the points you get if you win are doubled in comparison to a normal Riichi.

Fig. 034:

"Ho-ten": A hand that has not yet won, and is in a state other than "Tenpai", or one away from winning.

Fig. 041:

"Wat": The section of a hand that needs to be completed in order to win.

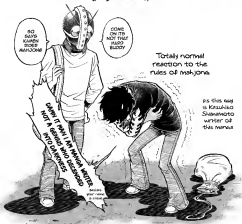

"Waiting on" a tile or tiles means that those tiles would complete your hand.

"Tsumi": Also known as a Self-Draw: completing your hand by drawing your winning tile yourself.

"Pin": A type of hand where the hand has no triplets, no dragon tiles, round winds, or seat winds, and is waiting on multiple tiles. Worth 1 Multiplier.

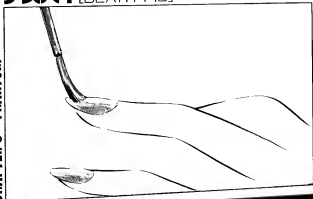

"Moxian Tsumi": A type of hand where the hand is entirely concealed (no call), and is won by Tsumi.

"Dora": The tile flipped over at the start of the round is called the "Dora Indicator". The tile next in sequence (i.e. 1 -> 2, 3 -> 4, East -> South) is the Dora. Each Dora you work into your hand gives you a bonus Multiplier.

"Ron": What you declare when winning a hand from a tile another person plays.

All the points the hand is worth are taken from that player, as opposed to a Tsumo (self-drawn), where the loss is divided among the other 3 players.

"Tanyao": A hand with no 1s, 9s, or Honor Tiles. Worth 1 Multiplier.

"Dora": The tile flipped over at the start of the round is called the "Dora Indicator".

The tile next in sequence (i.e. 1 → 2, 5 → 6, East → South) is the Dora.

Each Dora you work into your hand gives you a bonus multiplier.

Fig. 076

"Fur": What you declare when stealing an opponent's discard to complete a triplet in your hand. This triplet is locked into your hand and revealed, making your hand considered "open", meaning you can no longer call Richi, which requires your hand to be completely "closed".

Fig. 077

"Chin Han": A hand using only one of the three numbered suits (Pin, Sou, Man), and without any Honor Tiles. Worth 5 Multipliers when open, and 6 Multipliers when closed.
